

Seattle senior citizen, DJ Kelly, and her three best friends and co-owners of the Waterfront Art Gallery, are detecting again. Despite an insistent internal voice that chides her for her risky adventures, DJ is hot on the trailâ€“this time to help Darlene, a nurse, who is trying to find a young man who was brought into the emergency room yelling a lot of strange, seemingly meaningless terms, including â€œCCR5,â€•and then who disappearedâ€“possibly to the Psych Ward. Darlene has received a cryptic phone call from the young man and doesnâ€™t know where to turn. The four women fling themselves into the search, assisted by their old nemesis, Police Inspector Keohan, and the galleryâ€™s handyman and king of malapropismsâ€“Jerry. But their investigation suddenly takes a dangerous turn and the four ladies find themselves in serious jeopardy. Will they find the young man and unravel the mystery of his apparent mental breakdown before itâ€™s too late? Is he insane? Drugged? Or just pretending? Itâ€™s all in the genesâ€“and in this case, theyâ€™re â€œkiller genes.â€•
