

The vast majority of us buy our wine in high-street off licences and in the supermarket. We need to know what's good, what's bad and what's great, and we want to access that information quickly. For 2004, Malcolm Gluck's well-known title Superplonk has been relaunched with more selective content, so that the information is instantly accessible. The 1000 wines featured will all have a description and the guide will focus on the best wines available, so that the reader does not have to wade through less-than-wonderful entries. The title retains the Superplonk rating formula and features a range of additional outlets.
